On the contrary to what many individuals say or how they act around others, losing the dew can be a serious issue. It affects self-confidence levels and proves to be quite an emotional roller-coaster for men and women.

There are a lot of factors that may cause hair loss. First is genetics. Second is stress. And third is diet. Fortunately for both genders there are hair regrowth treatment options. It all depends on how far you're willing to go and how much you're willing to spend.

Phil Sullivan, a health officer, shares, “My brother was losing his curly black hair toward the end of high school, and it was starting to worry him. I was frank with him when he recently talked to me about it. So I gave him a copy of this book and he started his new routine to prevent hair loss,” and Melissa Taylor, a hair expert from Melbourne, reckons “*Always see a doctor first. When you first notice that you're losing your hair, consult a professional for hair regrowth treatment options and prevention solutions. It's prudent to act early.
